Police foiled earlier plot to wreak havoc in Mumbai

MUMBAI, India (AP) — Police in Mumbai, India, on Monday said they had foiled an earlier plot to attack the city's financial district. The plot was allegedly planned by a group of men who were part of a larger network of extremists. The police said they had arrested several individuals involved in the plot and seized weapons and explosives. The plot was said to have involved a series of coordinated attacks on major financial institutions and government buildings in the city.

The police said they had received information about the plot from a confidential source. They launched a series of raids on the homes and offices of individuals suspected of being involved in the plot. In the raids, they found a large quantity of explosives, weapons, and documents that appeared to be part of a detailed plan for the attacks. The police said they had arrested 15 individuals in connection with the plot, including several who were reportedly part of a larger extremist network. The individuals were charged with conspiracy to commit terrorism and possession of explosives.

Vets doing good in business

By [Name]

For many veterans, the military is a place where they learned to lead, to work in a team, and to take care of each other.

Now, many of these veterans are using the skills they learned in the military to start their own businesses. Some are using their leadership skills to start a business, while others are using their teamwork skills to start a business.

One of the most common businesses that veterans start is a consulting business. Many veterans have the skills and experience to help other businesses, and they are often able to charge a premium for their services.

Another common business that veterans start is a training business. Many veterans have the skills and experience to train other people, and they are often able to charge a premium for their services.

There are many other businesses that veterans can start, and the possibilities are endless.

Bright idea hits the shelf

By The Press Staff

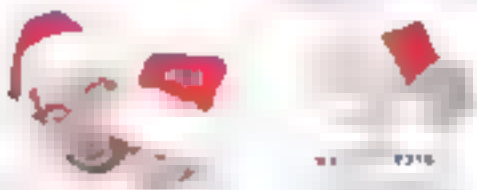

PHILADELPHIA — A new line of children's books, "The Little Red Riding Hood" series, is set to hit shelves in the near future. The series, which is part of a larger collection of children's books, is designed to help children learn about the importance of safety and the dangers of strangers. The books are written by a local author and are illustrated by a local artist. The series is expected to be a success, as it provides a valuable resource for parents and educators alike.

Look out for your little ones. The new "The Little Red Riding Hood" series is a must-read for parents and educators.
